Phoenix will be ringing in the summer with a massive street party (that's right, a party) on Sunday, June 29, 2015. We'll see you there! There is no better place to be 100 years old than on the beach, in the ocean, gazing out to the horizon. And there is no better place to start the new year than on a sandy beach too. In 2014, we had the honor of being selected as the Official Running Start for the Challenge Summer. Running Start is the official organization for the North America's Largest 5K Beach Run. They have created a weekend event that is unique to a marathon, half-marathon, marathon relay, mid-marathon, 5K, 10K and 1/2 marathon. The event is a full weekend of excitement and fun. There is a week-long resort filled with running training, a beach party with bar-be-que and an after party in the city. During the resort, participants can check out the new Challenge Summer website at challengeforphoenix.com. This new website is a huge resource filled with information and helpful links for participants. In 2015, the Challenge Summer will be an amazing new race. The Challenge Summer is a 5K, 10K, Half Marathon, Marathon and Marathon Relay. We'll have a new course for everyone to enjoy and the course is 17 miles long. The one thing that hasn't changed is the party that follows the race. The Challenge Summer 2015 will also have a new course. (Yes, we're excited!) In 2015, running has a new home. In 2015, running will become part of the Challenge Summer. Every year, running has hundreds of benefits such as heart health, mental health, improved energy and a lower rate of depression. When you sign up for a Challenge Summer,

Self-reported dietary intake is often used in epidemiological studies, but the validity and reliability of such dietary measures remain to be established. We developed a self-reported diet questionnaire (SDQ), based on the Australian Guide to Healthy Eating, and investigated its validity in a representative sample of Australian adults (n = 1742). Participants completed 3 other self-reported dietary measures (DQ, Diet Weight Loss Tool [Diet-WLT], and Diet Quality Index [DQI] 2013) and a 7-day food record (FR) during one week. Validity of the SDQ was assessed by comparison with the other dietary measures and FR and by its ability to discriminate between different dietary patterns as measured by principal component analysis (PCA). Using a relative validity framework, the SDQ had a median Spearman's rho correlation coefficient of 0.22 for energy, 0.11 for fat, and 0.15 for fiber and total fruit and vegetable intake. Bland-Altman plots showed minimal bias for most nutrients and foods but greater bias for food groups such as breads and grains, dairy, and eggs. The SDQ also had good ability to discriminate between dietary patterns (mean of 62.4% of explained variance). In conclusion, the SDQ showed good validity and utility for self-reporting of energy and specific nutrients and foods. However, its ability to accurately report foods commonly considered as healthy d0c515b9f4
