continue to be part of, health reform in Manitoba is becoming increasingly prominent. The case for the creation of a single health authority in Manitoba has been made, and I agree with this approach as it makes sense from many different perspectives. Where I have some concerns is that the term "consolidation" of health care delivery is often used within the conversations, and this term in this way risks the worst possible outcome for care in Manitoba. The problem is that consolidation in this context can mean many different things. There are different types of consolidation. For example, certain policies or programs from other provinces can be adopted and applied in Manitoba. That
