The turn-based RPG is back and while I would love nothing more than to see a sequel to The Legend of Dragoon, there is no doubt that the handful of games that are based on that experience, have done an admirable job in bringing the series' style of play to the PlayStation 3, PlayStation Vita and Nintendo 3DS, with the Wii U currently left out in the cold. Now that RPG has made its way to the Nintendo Switch, you'd expect a similar experience to the others, and that's not an insult to the Switch itself. Developed by Frozenbyte - the developer of the Trine series, Nine Parchments is an original co-op adventure where you play a master of wizards. You don't follow a traditional development path of assembling a team and having them create a prototype to test. The Frozenbyte way is iterative. First you start with a concept, and then you develop this with one to several other people. In the process, you continuously test the quality of the games. You have only three months to write a prototype, program the main engine and complete the game. While following the same team from the Trine games, this game's plot takes place in a far away land. Nine Parchments is a magical adventure with the end-goal to use powerful spells and build your own collection of magical tools. From beyond the land of green and stone appears a new type of creature. You are faced with a choice: do you side with them or with the human race? The Story of the Geeks After delivering the Trine trilogy to a wide audience, the creators of Trine find their way into a truly different form of game development. To give you an idea of what that means, their first game Trine 1 (the free Trine) was just an experiment and to this day it has only a handful of upgrades. Trine 2 - comprising Trine 1 and an additional level that the players had to pay for - is the biggest and most complex game to date. Trine 3 - a spiritual successor to Trine 1 and 2 - is set on an entirely different level of technology. Yet still they are the creators of Trine. This change of pace comes with a change of face. For years the team grew organically, doing everything themselves. They were the sole programmers, they were constantly present on social media discussing game design and mechanics, they created everything with their own hands. They created the game concept and took care of the art, they even did the music. It was a dream-like experience for many fans. When Trine 2 was released everyone was stunned. What the fans saw was a game with stunning visuals, excellent music and some amazingly funny dialogue. But there was a big problem: the only interactivity was the basic push of buttons. All this work and it's the same old game! The decision was made to change this. They felt that the gameplay wasn't as fun as the

Battle Continues Have you heard of Island Lovers?, it is a Facebook social puzzle game. You are playing as a girl who would like to find a place to live with the object of creating a perfect island oasis of place to live, eat, sleep, swim, love and play, in her small girl heart. This week, you are playing and I am on an island of location. ~~~ My bigger plan: to do

various puzzles to earn easier invites to find a preferred spot for my Girl and then the puzzles would be released for others to do. So you see, I would need an e-mail list, for those would want to take part or maybe just like a link to my Facebook page. Would help with your feedback on keeping me going and perhaps, if I needed help fixing an occasional bug or location errors. If you are on a second island with your own girl, feel free to communicate with each other. Have you ever used new zodiac? I don't know if it is new but it helped me find a spot on the island to relocate my girl from and the other girls also. This software is an absolute blessing and I would love to see it for future use for those of you who would like to escape or would like to relive a certain island location in your past or future. Thank you very much to the developers for giving us all this fine software and God bless their soul's. My two girls' names: SoraNea and For your thoughts: I have many, save the frozen bread and my friend that played paintball with me. Well, I'd like to add my two girls to the Island Lovers facebook fan page and perhaps we can translate the store to match with the game for easier invites. I know the issue with name censorship, for it being your city of the girl's names. It is how fashion and custom name duplication works in social media today. We have name translators for other geographic countries and it is a bit of a chore to do, but some of us would enjoy naming our girls and every so often find that we don't know the translation or if we do, but can't upload them. The name hunters in Australia would take advantage of this information and paste the correct names to their countries phone numbers and get away with it. It is only a game for

CUR3D is a free 3D game engine that allows for the real time rendering of 3D scenes. It also offers a wide range of tools and a rich set of 3D objects and materials, which you can use to create your own scenes or simply place 3D models from other sources into your 3D scene, then render it. CUR3D also uses a powerful feature called "constraints", which allows you to place 3D models in 3D space where you can place soft-bodies like people and robots, and they will act as if they were attached to you body. With CUR3D, you can import a wide range of 3D models into your 3D scenes and get new scenes in a few seconds. Also, CUR3D is fully compatible with both the XNA and MonoX servers, so you
