To obtain a view of the learning environment in the small hospital where RN and student nurses nurse on a rota and where there is minimal clinical teaching time. The views of nursing staff on the learning environment were sought through interviews. A detailed study of the learning environment was made in a total of

62 'patient focused time' learning situations. Findings of the study are presented. Staff viewed the rota system as a positive and a valuable learning experience. Difficulties with patient recruitment and the introduction of a 'safe' nurse are described. Considerable stress was associated with the learning environment in the current setting and the need for further development of nursing skills was evident. The study emphasizes the need for further clinical skill education in small scale settings to meet nurses' needs.Often Irreverent, Mostly Rational Blog for Fans of the Toronto Blue Jays. One Day, We'll Be Perfect. Tuesday, August 30, 2011 In Which I Subject the Whole Jays Blogging Scene to Some Very Un-Optimistic Appraisals It's absolutely insane that the Jays are batting.331 (12-for-36) through 19 games. Back in 2008, they would've been a disgrace to soccer and beer league hockey for their success, let alone an MLB powerhouse. Jay-Z posted a video clip on the Jays. The Jays site

"I just want to fuck with you guys all the time." [it's not all that bad, just a bit rough around the edges, it seems to be pretty lagging on the features and seems to need more practice in the areas that it does have. Overall, there's not a whole lot of gameplay left in it after the routine gameplay for sex (you don't get too much of that, either) where you have to press buttons that do certain things [in sequence] to enter certain areas, and you have to study charts and stuff to take pictures for the 'credits' where it shows your stats and stuff (level, score, etc.). You can't really get good or bad at this thing, but it's still enjoyable. [...] It's a game for those folks that are into putting things into folks, like...gorillas, or dolphins, or...other stuff, and then it's a game of "who's the best at putting things into other things", and having it done to you, for a price of course. It's simply a game for the social awkward guy to mock. Not a game I ever plan to play. I wish it was a download." Geek Monthly Game "[Sex Robot Road Trip:] Highway to Harrisburg" "is a pretty special game, it's a free download through Gotta Be Mobile, it can be bought for a nominal amount through other online retail outlets, and it is priced very cheap. It's not necessarily a shitty game, it has it's quirks and minor glitches, but it doesn't overwhelm you with poor gameplay or graphic design. All in all, this is a pretty good game for a free download, and I would recommend giving it a try. I know I will be getting it again in the future, as it's a game with a lot of potential, and it's one that I hope that future developers look at and tell themselves that their work is not only worth sticking around, but worth making money from as well." What's new in Super Grower:

…Literally? For the past week I've been telling all of you–knowing full well (pathetically) that cats aren't likely to alter their "…get off this lawn" stance and actually adopt the trick or treating feline humans who visit their Halloween haunts everyday–that our cat, Indy, will do nothing during the holidays because he's NOT a greedy turd of a human who cares about how he "feels" about anything other than what he's got in his billfold these days. Honesty in hope that our reader poll would clearly state that cats aren't, in general, into how we "feel" about anything. And I was right. Indy has no interest whatsoever in going out to put out some goodies with Aurora or any of my sisters and brother…or being in any other costume than the legendary model kitty, Miguel De La Rosa (you know, the absolute FIRST time he ever wore black.) …just a kitty. Technically, it's like being a cat. Except you get paid (or, at least, I do…), a couple of treats (once a week) as well as a nice clean litter box that's constantly stocked with catnip. (I call my parents and tell them that our cat, Indy, will be spending the next couple of weeks at a warm, dark home.) No matter what the weather has been like, our usually calm cat, Indy, has been honking for his treats/catnip/clean litter box everyday like he's absolutely angling for being a fugitive. …like all cats are (THEIR OWN KITTY PROBLEMS notwithstanding),* and has not stopped since he's been wearing this ridiculous costume. The fact is, he'd rather be sporting this classic millstone of a "whatever costume I wear is fine in my book as long as I get to eat food and go to the litter box daily" dishabille. NOTHING. As in: NOT COMING OUT TO EAT OR IF HE THINKS HE'S GOING TO CATCH A YARD DOG BY ITS FUZZY TAIL WHERE THERE ARE PAWS OF MINE. Any other normal cat will LOVE a night where he
