- Gravity will destroy everything in its path, and it's growing stronger the closer you get to its origin. - As the gravitational forces build on themselves, obstacles will snap, bend, and shatter, and it'll be up to you to avoid this. - Creating a rift will gather a small amount of gravity, which will further develop over time. - When a Rift has high enough pressure, it'll explode and destroy everything around it. - Your main ability is the Gravia Glove, which creates rifts all around you, and you can use them to manipulate the environment in many different ways. - As the game progresses, new methods of Rift creation will be unlocked. - The environment will slowly become more strained, and you'll be able to predict some of the ways Rifts can destroy everything around them. - Gravia will take you around, but will not run you over. Jump-pad most likely? - Physics - Gravia is set in a closed environment, so you'll have to deal with air resistance and angular momentum. - Controls - While Gravia's controls are action-oriented, they don't require any precision at all. The Gravia Glove has three main modes - Sweep, Twirl, and Leap - allowing for either very precise aiming, or a frantic chaotic method of attack. - Time-based objectives - You'll need to figure out some sort of path for yourself to take, and that path will not be able to change, per design. - Multiplayer - Gravia has no multiplayer currently, but it's in development. Animated small-scale pixel game about being a spaceship, and flying through 8 worlds with a small crew, while having to react to the difficulties you encounter in each world. Story takes place in the future, where a certain civilization looks a lot like us. In our timeline, everything was perfect, but there are those who would like to take it all away. The player's character is a member of this crew, and has to do his best to keep their civilization a reality. The game is made for mobile devices and displays a single screen, so that's where you'll have to direct your attention in this game. Controls are pretty straightforward, but, some parts are touch based. The game has different difficulties, with each one having its own set of difficulties, and some special scenarios. World 1 and 4 have special design built around them, and World 2 is an interesting experience,

What will you find there? What do people say about Unterlag? "100% recommended! Great fun and a great balance between puzzle and RPG” “Sounds interesting but not looking forward to much playing this right now” “As the title suggests, a puzzle RPG game. It’s unique and interesting in concept but it needs better mechanics” “It's a great game and its a new take on RPG games. I love it” “It’s a nice game I didn't enjoy but I would definitely recommend others to play it!” “Good game would have to be a standout but given the unique mechanic and nature of the characters, the game plays well and isn't even particularly difficult” “Just like watching a traditional RPG movie in the cinema and then getting to actually play the game itself.” “The game is fun, I don't know what the difference between a cross-platform and an offline game would be.” “It's a complete game and a nice idea.” “I played it for a couple hours and really enjoyed the game but it's not for me.” “The game is free to try and if you like it, it's $5 to buy. It's nothing fancy and it's a nice game but something feels off about it.” “Pros: it's very simple and it's fun.” “I'm not a fan of the UI but it's a very nice game” “It's a light RPG game with solid combat mechanics.” “Feels a bit c9d1549cdd

What's new:

Hannah and Dana are both very small. Hannah is taller by a couple of inches and Dana is maybe a half inch shorter. Hannah is white and often has pale skin, Dana is Hispanic and has a dark complexion. Actually, their skin color is a rare genetic condition known as albinism. I was struck by their similarity as well as their differences and thought their genetic makeup (and facial expressions in these photos) might make a very odd pair. How do you see Hannah and Dana? Are they friends? Are they rivals? I almost don't recognize them. My first thought? Their life expectancies are very different. My second thought? They certainly deserve each other! I used to watch baseball as a kid because of my dad. Unfortunately, my dad passed away before I got drafted and so my interest in baseball waned. By the way, I have no idea which photo is “which side” of the comic strip. All I know is I’m more blond (totally irrelevant) and Hannah is more white. Hannah and Dana The Original “Hannah” Has More Hair! From time to time, I realize the clothing is different or that the hair color is off and I look at a photo from 2005 or sometimes 2006 and say “I wonder who the “original Hannah” was and how that version of the strip turned out? Here’s a lovely update to that strip. Now let’s compare it to this new one, which is from today. Hannah is so much more white! She’s still very blonde and very white, but her hair is much lighter and in transition to a possibly darker color. I count 3 changes, two of which do not appear to change much of the strip. Maybe she always had purple eye makeup, but she no longer has the green green hair. But it hasn’t changed color at all, it just has more highlights. And the color around her mouth didn’t change much. Both of them, back to the left, match in the forehead, the high cheekbones and the shape of the mouth. But Hannah’s mouth probably looked more like “curious” and at its very center a little “where are my wings.” Her hair is lighter and so is her face, but her face looks more like a cartoon where there's an
