Para la restauraciÃ³n de la banda en el speaker del PS3. This invention relates to a supplemental cooling system for an automotive vehicle, and more particularly to a supplemental cooling system which provides relatively low power output, in the form of a liquid cooling pump, supplemental to the usual engine radiator of the vehicle. The power output of an internal combustion engine is often insufficient, particularly in high-speed drive applications, to maintain the vehicle in a comfortable operating condition. One approach to the problem, when a vehicle employing a liquid cooling system is overheated, is to use a supplemental coolant pump, to provide additional cooling for the vehicle. This system, however, requires a relatively large power output from the vehicle
