Simple Flashcards is a pretty basic game which aims to help you learn English. On first opening the program, you're presented with a bunch of words. The game plays like a trivia game, as you read words one by one and have to press "Yes" or "No" to the left of the word to see whether you know the word or not. In other words, you won't learn the English language from Simple Flashcards. The program doesn't aim to teach you the language, but rather provide you with trivia and flashcard memory application. Description:

SwipeBoard is a basic app which aims to help you find shortcuts, in the form of apps and programs that are easy to launch and execute on your PC. Every time you launch SwipeBoard, you'll be shown a list of all programs and shortcuts which can be added.

Once you've selected one, you'll be taken to the "app launcher" of the program. Here, you'll see an option to enter the shortcut manually, or go straight to the program you want to launch. In most cases, this will be a shortcut key already in your keyboard, and in others, it'll be shown as a tab in the application itself. Shortcuts SwipeBoard relies on a very basic concept of shortcuts, which lets you add your applications and programs to a list. You'll be able to filter programs by category, so every time you launch SwipeBoard, you'll see a list of all the programs you use the most. For instance, you'll be able to find the list of default programs, because the developers of SwipeBoard clearly thought that most people use the same programs everyday. Of course, as an interface, SwipeBoard is not that impressive. It's basically a search engine that lets you find something. You'll find a list of apps, with no options to filter for the search, unless you select a specific category. Unfortunately, a major problem with SwipeBoard is the fact that the program is extremely slow, and often can't keep up with your actions. This means that sometimes, you'll search for something you use frequently, and the program will show nothing for you to launch, unless you select a category and search for it. Of course, this is a problem with any program which is meant to the-go, and play your favorite tunes anywhere. Start by browsing your music library or choosing a radio station on the homepage, which displays a list of stations based on the music you listen to. The discovery tab can help you track music you've never heard of. It's also where you can subscribe to new stations, add a station to your favorites, or mark music as playing so you'll be reminded of it when you're not listening to music. Spotify features such as the Library tab and Discover Weekly allow you to quickly browse music based on your interests. The Library tab lets you find a song, album, or playlist based on genre or artist, and then subscribe to it to keep up to date. Check out the personalization tab to change your search to artists, composers, genres, and languages, and get recommendations for music you might like. Dedicated stations let you listen to music based on a specific genre, like heavy metal, hip hop, and classic rock. Browse popular and recommended songs from artists, albums, and artists you follow. Listen to music with friends using the friends tab. Connect with friends who like similar music, and share your favorites. You can listen to music with Spotify Connect enabled devices, such as your PC, phone, or tablet. You can follow artists and subscribe to radio stations from any web browser using the website tab. Spotify also features a radio station discovery tab, which helps you track music you've never heard of. News Go to the mac App Store and search for "Skitch" to download this app. Skitch is great for taking pictures, annotating them with highlights and arrows and then uploading them to social media. It is also great for making mark ups for your text files. Text editing is something that most computer users are familiar with, but often we don't realize that what we are doing has an impact on the program we are editing. In other words, you can't treat a text editor like a computer spreadsheet. Developed by THC Design, Inc., Express Scribe is a straightforward application for creating outlines and outlines. It includes the ability to display your outline in a list format. A world of new content is just waiting to be discovered in the Mahalo Marketplace. Browse by topic, type, popularity, date, or price. Discover new merchandise and deals as the Marketplace continually grows. Rene Herlaar of the R8 Research Group, has a thorough review of Jott for the appworld.com website. If you do not own a smart phone, Jott does not perform well in these apps, I suggest a more traditional client like Evernote.
